

Yorkshire Wildlife Trust Ancient Woodland Talk

by Professor Ian Rotherham

Woods are perhaps our most evocative wildlife habitats. This illustrated talk will introduce the fascinating subject of ancient woodland, the subject of the recent book by Shire Publishing 'Ancient Woodland: History, Industry and Crafts'.

From wet woodlands of Potteric, to Yorkshire's ancient bluebell woods, the survival of our woodland resource is remarkable. Woodland wildlife is closely linked to the ancient status of the sites and to the intimate relationships between human usage and managements over many centuries.

Ian Rotherham is Professor of Environmental Geography in the Department of the Natural & Built Environments, Sheffield Hallam University.

Venue: Potteric Carr Nature Reserve, Doncaster

When? Sunday 2nd March, 2pm-4pm

£3.50 per person.

Please call Potteric Carr Nature Reserve on 01302 570077 to book

www.ywt.org.uk

Love Yorkshire, Love Wildlife